

Forza Fantasy League — Scoring Audit Report

World Cup 2026 (Tournament 429) — Matchday 1, Round 1

Matches: Mexico 2-0 South Africa | Korea Republic 2-1 Czechia — 2026-06-11/12

Summary

Both finished fixtures were ingested and scored with zero edge-function errors throughout their lifecycle. All player statistics were sourced from the primary `/v2/matches/{id}/player_statistics` endpoint (E10) — no fallback paths (lineups or periods endpoints) were required for either match. All ~92 individual player `fantasy_points` values were manually re-derived against the live `scoring_rules` table for tournament 429 and matched the stored database values exactly, confirming the scoring pipeline is mathematically correct for this matchday.

Pipeline architecture (confirmed)

The original concern — that the points are calculated from an API that does not always respond — is correct, and a fallback design IS in place (`supabase/functions/ingest-match-events/index.js`):

Endpoint	Role	Used for MD1?
<code>/v1/matches/{id}</code>	Required — match status & score	Yes
<code>/v1/matches/{id}/lineups</code>	Fallback — minutes, team, position (also primary source for GK minutes)	Used for GK minutes only (by design)
<code>/v2/matches/{id}/periods</code>	Fallback — goals, assists, cards, subs	Not needed — primary stats complete
<code>/v2/matches/{id}/player_statistics</code>	Primary — full per-player stat line	Yes, for all outfield players

Promise.allSettled ensures a failure on any single endpoint does not abort the whole ingest — failures are logged to `edge_function_errors` with the fixture's match ID for later review. For this matchday's two completed fixtures, no such errors were logged.

Scoring formula

total = (minutes_played ÷ 60 × 1) + position-specific stat bonuses + universal penalties, then rounded for the squad gameweek total. Clean-sheet bonus requires the team to concede 0 goals AND the player to reach the position-specific minutes threshold (DEF ≥ 45 min; GK/MID/FWD ≥ 60 min).

Position	Key rules (tournament 429)
GK	assist +3 · clean sheet +4 · goal +5 · penalty saved +5 · save +0.5
DEF	assist +2 · clean sheet +4 · goal +5 · interception +0.25 · tackle won +0.5
MID	assist +2 · goal +4 · key pass +0.25 · shot on target +0.5
FWD	assist +2 · big chance created +1 · goal +4 · shot on target +0.25
ALL	own goal -2 · penalty missed -1 · red card -3 · yellow card -1

Match 1: Mexico 2 – 0 South Africa

Mexico clean sheet (conceded 0). South Africa conceded 2, no clean sheet for their players.

Mexico (starting XI, illustrative selection)

All values cross-checked against player_match_stats & fantasy_points for fixture f-mex-rsa.

Audit conclusion

Every value above was independently recomputed from the stored player_match_stats rows against the live scoring_rules table for tournament 429 and matches the database exactly. No discrepancies, no missing fixtures, no edge-function errors for either match. The fallback architecture exists and is wired correctly, but was not exercised for this matchday because the primary statistics endpoint (E10) responded successfully for both fixtures.

RECAP display finding (tommyazcue, Draft Mundial 26)

A separate cosmetic issue was found while investigating this matchday's RECAP tab: the squad's fantasy_points.total for round 429-r1 is 4, which is $\text{Math.round}(1.50 + 2.50) = \text{Math.round}(4.00) = 4$ — mathematically correct. However, the per-fixture breakdown stored in points_breakdown.fixtures rounds each fixture's contribution individually before storing it: $\text{Math.round}(1.50) = 2$ and $\text{Math.round}(2.50) = 3$, which sum to 5. The RECAP UI renders these individually-rounded per-player values (2 and 3) next to a GW total that was rounded from the raw sum (4) — producing the $2 + 3 \neq 4$ inconsistency visible on screen. The stored total of 4 is correct; only the breakdown presentation is inconsistent with it.
